Joya at Oran Good Park

A new exciting truly original concept has come to Dallas-Ft Worth. Joya at Oran Good Park, the first “Glow in the Dark” playground in the U.S., is now open in Farmers Branch.

Located at Valley View Lane and Tom Field Road, the 18,000-square-foot facility is an innovative new twist on a park, featuring LED lights and interactive features that change color and will illuminate the park after dark - making it a destination both for day and night.

The city of Farmers Branch promises a one-of-a-kind playground experience.

In addition to the distinctive lighting, the playground will have a 27-foot climbing sphere with six levels, swings, slides, obstacle course, zip line, and hammocks.

A sound system will pipe in sounds of nature.

Joya will feature both a main playground (for ages 6+) and a tot playground (for ages 2 to 5). Visitors can also access trails, picnic tables, pavilions, and park benches.

Joya is part of Oran Good Park, a 10-acre complex at 13300 Dennis Ln. that also boasts two baseball fields, four softball fields, a mini-soccer field, trails, and creek. Joya will replace the existing playground at Oran Good Park.

And since it's a city park, everyday access is free.

*The Grand Opening was January 20. The illumination of lights at 6:30 pm. The park closes at 10pm.
